Historic Walking Tour... The historic sites of Old Town Warrenton.

- A Warrenton Cemetery... Corner of W. Lee & S. Chestnut St • The final resting place of Col. John S. Mosby, 66 of Mosby's Rangers, and 986 Confederate soldiers, of every Southern state; about 650 casualties of the Civil War, 585 of whom died after being evacuated to Warrenton & vicinity after the 1st and 2nd Battles of Manassas.
- B Fauquier History Museum at the Old Jail... 10 Ashby St • One of the most perfectly preserved old jails in the Commonwealth, the complex includes the 1808 brick jail, converted to the jailer's residence in 1823, and the parallel 1823 stone jail with its high-walled jail yard. Hangings took place in the jail yard until 1896. The building was used as a jail until 1966. • The Museum houses exhibits about Fauquier's notable events & figures.
- C Fauquier County Courthouse... Originally built in 1791, the courthouse was destroyed by fire twice. The courthouse which now stands was re-built in 1890 and was a replica of the courthouse that stood here during the Civil War. In this current building, John Mosby lay in state when he died in 1916.
- D Statue of John Marshall... On the lawn next to the Courthouse, is a statue of John Marshall, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court for 34 years, and Fauquier native. Marshall supported the Revolution and fought for the adoption of the Constitution.
- E California Building... c.1850, Originally built as a residence for William "Extra Billy" Smith. After the Civil War ended and Mosby was pardoned by Ulysses Grant, Mosby maintained his law office here from 1865 - 1877.
- F Warren Green Hotel... Now known as the Warren Green Building, county government offices are currently located here. • Built on the site of the Norris Tavern in 1819, Union Gen. George McClellan said farewell to his troops here after being fired by Pres. Lincoln, and turned command over to Gen. Ambrose E.
- G Beckham House... 7 Culpeper St • Now a private men's club, during the "Fairfax Courthouse Raid", Union cavalry Gen. Edwin Stoughton was kidnapped by Mosby's Rangers from his bed at Fairfax amid thousands of Union cavalymen. Stoughton was brought to this home for breakfast before being sent to Richmond as a prisoner of war. In addition, the parents of Stoughton's pre-war West Point roommate lived here.
- H Warrenton Presbyterian Church... Built in 1855, this church served as a hospital during the Civil War with patients on the sanctuary floor and horses in the basement. A hole in the first floor permitted dropping of fodder to the horses down below.
- I Warrenton Baptist Church... This brick structure replaced an 1850 wooden church. The Church served as a hospital during the Civil War.
- J The Mosby House... Constructed in 1859 by Judge Edward Spillman, this home was owned by the famed Confederate cavalryman John S. Mosby who occupied the house after the Civil War. After the death of his wife, Mosby sold the house to another famous Confederate, Eppa Hunton.
- K Warrenton Branch Greenway... This popular paved trail was constructed over an abandoned railway line which was part of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad.
- Burnside in November 1862. • Mosby often ate here during and after the Civil War. • In 1825, Gen. Lafayette was given a banquet here and addressed a crowd of 6,000 which included Andrew Jackson, James Monroe and Henry Clay. • The hotel was host to Pres. Theodore Roosevelt who spoke to a crowd from its balcony in 1909. • Wallis Warfield, future Duchess of Windsor, resided here while awaiting her first divorce. Years later, King Edward VIII of England would abdicate his throne to marry her.
- L The Depot... Now Claire's at the Depot restaurant, this depot was built in 1907 to replace the original depot of 1852. This is the site where a bitter citizen tried to assassinate Mosby after the Civil War.
- M John Quincy Marr House... 118 Culpeper St • This is a private home and is not open to the public. • This home, built in 1830, was home to the first Confederate officer to die in the Civil War. Captain of the Warrenton Rifles, Marr was killed at Fairfax in June 1861.
- N Mecca... 194 Culpeper St • This is a private home and is not open to the public. • Built in 1859, many a Confederate soldier waltzed in its elegant drawing room. • The home was used as a hospital after the 1st and 2nd Battles of Manassas. It was also used as headquarters for Union Generals McDowell, Sumner, and Russell (1863 - 1865).
- O Paradise... 158 Winchester St • This is a private home and is not open to the public. • Built in 1758, this is the oldest home in Warrenton. Built for Col. Martin Pickett, a soldier in the French & Indian War, delegate to Virginia Constitutional Convention in 1788. Site of bivouac by Lafayette Honor Guard in 1825.

Attractions

Warrenton is the gateway to Virginia's Piedmont region—where wineries, horses and beautiful vistas abound—and is the perfect place to call home as you enjoy all the region has to offer, including:

Old Town Warrenton... Stroll the brick sidewalks and amid the history find unique gifts, delightful food and friendly smiles. See art come alive in our 5 galleries; or bring out your own talent in pottery, music, painting, or crafts.

Wineries... Venture into the beautiful countryside to the Piedmont's 114 wineries. Follow the Fauquier Wine Trail, make your own, or enjoy a personalized tour via trolley.

History... Visitors can walk where the "Gray Ghost" John S. Mosby once raided, lived and is now buried. Entrenched in history, the town has lovingly preserved its historic character and is a must see for Civil War buffs.

Horses... Known as Horse & Wine Country, Fauquier hosts some of the largest equestrian events in the country, including the Virginia Gold Cup steeplechase races.

Outdoors... Enjoy hiking, fishing, birding and more in Warrenton's backyard. Nearby are Shenandoah National Park, Sky Meadows State Park, and C.M. Crockett Park.
